AN EXCELLENT PLANT

The Planning Mill and Lumber Yard Conducted by Arthur Meigs. One of the most important and prominent business plants in this city is the large lumber yard and planing mill on Seventh street, adjoining the Chicago & West Michigan railway tracks, conducted by Mr. Arthur Meigs.

DEFECTIVE DIRECTIONS

THE BASIS OF BUSINESS FOR THE DEAD LETTER OFFICE.

Hints and Suggestions to Careless Writers—Facts and Information of Interest to the General Public.

There are few persons who will believe that they are incapable of placing an address upon a letter, and yet it is shown that there are millions who fail to do it correctly. Whether their failure is due to ignorance or carelessness is not apparent, but as ignorance is supposed to be decreasing while carelessness is increasing it must be charged mainly to carelessness on the part of writers. The matter has increased to such proportions that Superintendent Leibold, of the Dead Letter Office, has deemed it necessary to draw the attention of the public to it. He has issued a circular on the subject and requests postmasters to enlist the service of the press in giving to the public information relative to the matter, so that by resulting to increasing the efficiency of the postal system. Following are some of the more important and interesting statements made in the circular:

Over six million pieces of mail are returned annually to the post office by reason of incorrect, illegible, or deficient address, insufficient postage, insecure inclosing, whereby material mailed became separated from the envelope or wrapper, or the address was not delivered or delivered to the person addressed. This is a daily average of over twenty thousand pieces.

Matter sent to the dead letter office, which cannot be delivered to the person named, is required to be returned to the sender, and if the name and address of the sender be not shown or cannot be ascertained from the contents, and it contains no valuable inclosure, it must be destroyed.

Letters opened and found to contain any inclosure of obvious value are entered upon proper records, and, if such, those which do not disclose sufficient information to enable them to be returned are filed, subject to reclamation upon proper application and identification.

Large quantities of letters and parcels fall to be restored to the owners because of the absence on the wrappers of inclosures of any kind or ownership thereof.

Of the unclaimed and undelivered mail matter received at the post office by year, 451,000 were letters—mistakenly, or only partially addressed—1,400,000 were parcels, and 2,400,000 were letters, bearing no address at all. Among the latter were frequently found the correspondence of business men, of which a large portion consisted of inclosures of money, drafts, checks, etc.

One hundred and sixty-two thousand were letters mailed to various addresses, and many of them were addressed to fictitious addresses, and many of them were addressed to fictitious addresses, and many of them were addressed to fictitious addresses.

Eight thousand were parcels of merchandise, many of which were misdirected, and many of them were addressed to fictitious addresses, and many of them were addressed to fictitious addresses.

Twenty-eight thousand contained money amounting in all to $48,045.00. Four thousand had inclosures of postal notes in small sums under $5, aggregating $5,300.

er, in which case it is also returnable directly to the sender from the postoffice addressed, charged with return postage. All other letters, and less than the rates of postage that it can be readily examined at the office of delivery, as well as at the mailing office, without destroying the wrapper; otherwise it is subject to letter postage, in mailing packages addressed to foreign countries, care should be taken to ascertain whether they are prohibited from transmission to the country of destination, or can only be forwarded when the postage is fully provided for by the sender. A considerable quantity of grain was obtained when the wheat was drilled 1 1/2 and 3 inches deep than when it was drilled 4 inches deep. The depth of drilling wheat must be governed by the soil. Lighter soils will permit the wheat to be put in deeper than soils that are heavy, and that are of composition that they are likely to make after rain.

Results of Tests Made in Wheat Culture at the Ohio Station During the Past Eight Years—Thick and Thin Seeding, Winter Protection, Etc.

For eight years experiments in wheat seeding have been carried out at the Ohio station, where the rates of seeding have been all the way from two to nine pecks per acre. During this period the seven best rates were the highest yield, but has been closely followed by the five and six peck rates. Mulching wheat for winter protection has failed to be of any practical benefit. A considerable larger yield of grain was obtained when the wheat was drilled 1 1/2 and 3 inches deep than when it was drilled 4 inches deep.
