The Alliance and the Senators. The Minnesota farmers are tired high protection. Their Alliance at convention has declared in unmistaka terms in favor of a lower tarif. The re-olutions adopted demand that "the v tariff be radically avoided, giving nec-torial con the free list, to the end that farmers of Minnesota may be able obtions subplied domain that "has war sary reductions and placing traw un-terial on the free list, to the end that the farmers of Minnesota may be able to complete with the world for a market." They wart raw materials to be placed taxed higher and higher at the instance of the McKinelytes to sait the wishes of a few manufacturem who have nothing to offer the farmers in return but the sorry uop of a problematical rise of one their wool, which must be paired time, bed coverings and carpote. They demand a radical revision of the tariff in their wool, which must be paired. They demand a radical revision of the tariff in the to be sold in open competition with that of other countries. Apparently the Minnesota senators are not awars of this attitude on the part of on est attach to it the importance it da-refer the constant of the provider of the second of the provider of the second of the not aware of this attitude on the part of their constituents, or if they know of it do not attach to it i the importance it de-serves. Certainly nothing they have yet said of done indicates them to be "in touch" with the people they are supposed to represent at Washington to touch" with the people they are supposed to represent at Washington. It is about time for them to wake up if they would not be rated as unfaithful and unprofit able servants, unworthy to have cound dence reposed in them for the future.--Chicago Tribune. Note that we can be a set of the set of the Moral Enthestasm. According to Edward Bellamy, in The American Agriculturist, the fact which "constitutes altogether the most signifi-cant aspect of the farmers' uprising is that it attacks the industrial, political, that it attacks the influstrial, political commercial and social system on line so radical as to be revolutionary. This is the characteristic which broadly dis tinguishes it from any more political overturn, and comples its recognition a a part of the present world wide move ment of the masses for a radical change in the industrial system—a movemen everywhere so alarming to thoma who? everywhere so alarmus, not understand it, so inspi "ho do."

The proceeds to point out that it must invitably result in the great national party of the people, "which is destined in the near future to establish a nohler in the near future to establish a nohler war has there been a political campaign war has there been a political campaign or more properly i may asy just closed or more properly i may asy just closed of the political matching and the political down, as the political would like to the other invite more than the a mere of year demonstration." The Author of Lorna Doone R. D. Blackmore lives in great R. D. Blackmore lives in great reurn-ment at his pretty villa residence, "Shortwood," close to Teddington sta-tion, which latter place, by the way, is an innovation not at all to tha taste of the veteran novelist, who built his home before the station existed, and now re-oreta its proximity. Mr. Blackmore's "theory is a state of the st who built his hour grets its proximity. Mr. Blackmore's hobby is his garden. In front there is a timily kept lanew, surroundab by flour-ishing bods where rholdendrons, pic-les, roses of every hus and olf fashion-d country flowers vie with each in abundance. where stray that much of is is sold in the fruit mar-kets. It has always been Mr. Blackmore's extonon to work a few hours daily in his garden, and this seems to be his favorite recreation. Mr. Blackmore's new over 70 years of age, and a wildower. His two mittees short in this, set, with white hair and whiskers; his face, is strongly ined, and the blue eyes and bushy eye-brows are very characteristic. He re-minds one somewhat of "Uncel Corry" in his latest work, "Kitty," the hero gardener living at one of the rive vid-gardener living at one of the rive vid-lages a little higher up than Teddington. - Toronto Yalu.
