Art is always its own best reward, and the poet's dearest object in life must always be to give to the world "the mesage that in him burns." Still, he needs friends, requires lesare, wants bread. Thackeray once wrote to a friend. "Our twopence relations get us at least twopence-halfpenny."

One pecoliarity of the principal dances of savage nations is that in nearly every nintance they imitate the movements of animals. This is evidenced in the buf-fico and hear dances of the North Amer-ican Indians, the bear dance of the Kamtchatkans and the kargaroo dance of the aboriginal Australians.

Bells are mostly cast from a composi-tion of copper and tin, through other in-gredients are often used. When the right proportions of these two metals are combined and reduced by intense heat to liquid form the mass is poored into a clay mold of the desired shape and size. It is wicked to be wasteful; is it not as wicked to be pennrions? Both habits en-tail misery on others; but as a personal matter it is more agreeable to have to do with a spendthrift than a miser, and therefore the world loves the one and hates the other.
