

THE PLATFORM

A Long Warm Time Spent by It.

The Platform Adopted and the Nominating Speeches Made-Exciting Times.

Chicago, June 22.—Through the convention assembled at 5 o'clock and was called to order at 5:30. It was 6:30 before the platform committee was ready to report.

When the platform committee arrived Jones of Missouri took the speaker's stand and announced that immediately after the reading of the platform he would move the previous question.

Senator Vilas, of Wisconsin, then began reading the platform. Almost at the outset the platform spoke of the party leaders from Madison to Cleveland.

The reading of the platform and applause combined occupied just five minutes when the speaker returned to his seat.

Before beginning his remarks Watson asked the reading clerk to read the platform and the reading was completed in 1876, which was done.

The platform was greeted with great applause. This declaration said Mr. Watson in his speech was the cry of the people that great man and that great Democrat.

He had established his great record and now when he heard this platform read he could almost imagine he was in a grand convention.

Senator Vilas was speaking the scene was quite dramatic. Watson standing only about two feet behind him and leaning forward.

Upon the conclusion of Vilas' remarks Watson said he only wished to reply to one point made by the senator and that was in reference to the tariff of 1884.

HE IS NOMINATED ON THE FIRST BALLOT.

He Is Nominated on the First Ballot.

The Announcement Is Received With Great Cheering by the Convention.

Chicago, June 23.—3:30 p. m.—After the nominating speech a motion to adjourn was voted down, and a ballot was ordered.

When about 17 minutes had elapsed Cleveland was called to the platform for ten minutes of great applause. A little later in his speech he was recounting the history of the platform.

BEATEN AND ROBBED

Fred Kalkstein of Traverse City Fearfully Murdered.

He Is Found Upon the Railroad Track With a Bloody Gash in His Head.

Yesterday morning as the engineer of the early morning train on the G. H. & M. railway was rounding the curve just east of the city, he discovered an object on the track and stopped his train just in time to save the life of Fred Kalkstein of Traverse City.

The examination showed that Kalkstein's head was covered with blood, flowing from a frightful gash in his head. He was unconscious and was taken in charge by conductor J. S. Stroup and engineer Stewart, who brought him to the depot and delivered him over to the police.

The theory of the officers is that the man was struck by a train while he was crossing the tracks. The man was found with a bloody gash in his head and was taken to the hospital.

DEPUTY DOHERTY SLUGGED BY HIS TRAMP.

The Officer Clings to His Assaultant and Brings Him in to the Jail.

Yesterday Sheriff McQueen received word from Grand Haven that Jim Cassidy was on his way to the Valley City and was wanted at Grand Haven.

Upon arriving at the yard he did not find Cassidy, but did find a gang of about thirty customers drinking from a bottle, and at the request of the yard master arrested a couple of them.

While walking up the avenue Mr. Doherty's attention was diverted for an instant and during that time Zeldens pulled a whisky bottle from his pocket and struck the officer on the nose, breaking it into a thousand pieces.

THE ELECTION CHANGES

Upon the political lines and differences of 1888 the Republicans would be quite certain to win the election next November. They would certainly carry the states with electors as follows:

Table listing states and electors: California 9, New Hampshire 3, Colorado 3, Ohio 23, Illinois 12, Iowa 6, Maine 4, South Dakota 3, Minnesota 10, Wisconsin 10, Nevada 3, Wyoming 7, Total 91.

Upon the same lines and differences the Democrats would have states with electors as follows:

Table listing states and electors: Indiana 15, Connecticut 5, Michigan 14, New York 32, Total 66.

Upon the same lines and differences the Democrats would have states with electors as follows:

Table listing states and electors: Alabama 11, Missouri 17, Kansas 6, North Carolina 11, Florida 12, Tennessee 12, Kentucky 12, Louisiana 8, West Virginia 12, Mississippi 6, Total 139.

The whole number of electors is 532 and 112 are required to elect.

The Republicans would lack 22 and these they could expect from Michigan and Indiana and thus elect without New York.

It will be seen from the standpoint of political divisions in 1888 the Democrats to elect must have 54 electors from the doubtful states and therefore could not elect if they had every doubtful vote outside of New York, and they would be again defeated according to the judgment of Governor Flower and the best politicians of that state who say Mr. Cleveland cannot carry it.

On the contrary, however, it is to be admitted in this connection that the best Republican politicians say Harrison cannot carry the state and so it must be the state is ripe for the People's party.

Under all the circumstances it will be safest for the Democrats to plan for a victory without New York this year.

Since 1888 there are new conditions and political lines are changed. Kansas, Nebraska, North Dakota and Minnesota are badly unsettled by the People's party, which has shown strength enough to carry all those states, with a part of Michigan, if it is reinforced by the Democrats.

These four states solid, and so much of Michigan as is carried, will make more than the 36 votes of New York.

It is quite certain besides that the People's party can carry Colorado, Nevada, Wyoming, Idaho and Montana, giving 16 votes. The silver states, with the Alliance states named in the North cast 46 votes. These were all, excepting Montana counted in the Republican total of 301, and if taken therefrom leaves but 115 votes.

Now, if all the 71 votes of Indiana, Michigan, Connecticut and New York are given the Republicans they would have but 228 votes, from which at least 7 votes in Michigan will have to be deducted, defeating Harrison and Reid in the electoral college.

If the Democrats play into the hands of the People's party by abandoning to the electoral ticket of that party the states of Kansas, Nebraska, North Dakota, Minnesota, Idaho, Nevada, and Wyoming, Colorado, Montana and part of Michigan they can defeat Harrison if they cannot carry New York, Indiana and Connecticut, and by so doing they do not abandon their fight for the states that are doubtful between republicans and Democrats, nor for a majority in the house and senate.

A CAMPAIGN OF EDUCATION.

Chairman Owens says this also must be a campaign of education. The tariff question requires more education of the people than if it was the mystery of life itself. A campaign of education means a doubtful prospect for the education.

Why not give the country a campaign on a subject that the people believe they understand, whether they do or not. This tax question does not touch them because the operation of the tariff are so subtle that they do not feel them. The money question is different, it requires no education to convince a man he has no money when he has none, it requires no education to prove to a man that more than the price of his products are below the cost of production, it requires no education to prove to a workman that going wages are too low to maintain himself and family respectably.

It requires no education to convince the great mass of voters they should vote against these things, they know what the facts are and that the party in power must be held responsible. But the voters want more than this condition of things and this party to vote against, they want something to vote for. They are ready to vote against Harrison and his policy that have led up to the many deplorable features of the nation's condition, but they want to know that in voting for Cleveland they are declaring for something distinctly different and they have no patience with a difference that is so subtle as a tariff for revenue, incidentally protective, and a tariff for protection that is incidentally free trade.

It is to see this difference that a campaign of education is proposed, and the people will turn from it to vote on the money, land and transportation questions, which are so plain that they can see the point every time they think of their dire necessities in the midst of abundance.

The Democrats from Michigan in Chicago are reported in The Democrat as amusing themselves with naming men for the People's party state ticket. It is not likely that crowd can influence the selection of a man on that ticket. In fact, it is more than likely that they want none of it.

The resolutions of sympathy for Mr. Blaine, passed by the Democratic national convention, was no doubt well meant, but it is questionable if the Democrats are on sufficiently good terms with him to thus ostentatiously intrude themselves upon him in his great sorrow.

When reference is made to the place where Reid was officially notified of his nomination for vice-president the Republican papers are careful to refer to it as his "farm." When Mr. Reid talks of this farm to his millionaire associates it is called his "country seat," ah?

There has been so much scheming and apparent underhand business in connection with the Kent County fair, that it would not be surprising if the farmers got worn under the collar over it, and determine to make the fair a success despite its enemies.

It is evident Chicago has done herself credit in providing a hall for the Democratic national convention. Chicago has been spoiled by too many conventions. She may not be troubled soon again.

The People have been warned against the Democratic party because it would put the rebel brigadiers in the saddle, are the rebel brigadiers any more dangerous than the millionaires?

It seems a sort of logical result that the first ratification meeting for Harrison and Reid should be held in "Carnegie hall," New York City.

CHANNING DEWEY, the president of the New York Central railroad, becomes secretary of state, so now the Vanderbilts are in the saddle.

There was nothing very remarkable in Owen's speech, excepting that it was strongly tinged with both and hypocrisy.

With Mr. Depew in the office of secretary of state retaliation on Canada will be dropped. The Vanderbilts will command the day.

Our Mr. Uhl always gets a front seat and always meets the fond expectation of his friends.

The People's Party (From the Post-Express.)

When Roger Q. Mills was elected to the senate his seat in the house became vacant, and a special election to fill that vacancy was ordered by the governor of Texas to be held on June 14.

The returns of that election, just received, show a majority of 215 for E. L. Antony, the Democratic candidate, over I. N. Barber, the candidate of the People's party.

The result is likely to astonish Democrats in all parts of the country, and particularly in the south, who the new People's party is growing with marvelous rapidity.

In 1886 Mr. Mills carried his district by a majority of 5,811, in 1889 by a majority of 5,184, and in 1892 by a majority of 16,240. In 1888 the counties comprising the district gave Cleveland a majority of 12,441. In 1890 they gave the Democratic candidate for governor a majority of 15,586.

Now the People's party runs its first candidate in that district and the Democratic majority is only 315.

The leaders of the new party are greatly encouraged by this result, and a still more vigorous campaign will be waged later on, when a republican will be elected in the fifty-third congress, and in other districts of Texas the People's party will nominate its candidates and fight hard for their success, and in nearly all the states of the South.

Candidates for president and vice-president are to be nominated at Omaha hereafter, and there will be a vigorous campaign in several states. The people of the very best of the South, Carolina, in Georgia, in Texas, in Kansas, in Nebraska, in Colorado, and in Wisconsin and Minnesota. It would be unwise to predict that it will not carry single state. It may carry two or three, while in many it will exert a powerful influence in shaping results.

Next Meeting People's Party. There will be a grand mass meeting of the People's party in the Circuit court room Saturday evening June 25, 1892, to elect senatorial and legislative committees, and transact other important business. Members of the People's party, Patrons of Industry, Citizens Alliance, K. of L. trades union and delegates to the Lansing convention are invited to be present.

HOW SHE EARNED HER CAR FARE.

A woman's ingenious device for making money to pay her car fare is the subject of a story.

A woman who is now one of the most promising artists in this city, and who was lucky enough to get two of her pictures accepted by the Academy, writes a story of how she earned her first few pennies in this big town.

"When I came here five years ago I had just twenty-five dollars in my pocket. I got a room—no, rather a cubicle hole in the roof—in a boarding house on Fourth avenue. It was three weeks before I got anything to do. Then a place was offered to me as a primary teacher in a private school. The salary when you get it was fair enough in amount. But unfortunately you didn't get it until the end of the month.

"By this time there was such a tremendous hole in my twenty-five dollars that I couldn't afford to move up town. The expense alone would have made a bankrupt of me. For I had absolutely come to such a pass that I had to be content to pay my car fare to the school.

"I explained the situation to the landlady. She really was a dear old soul. 'She said I didn't want to worry about my board but she was perfectly willing to wait for her money until the end of the month.

"That was one weight off my mind of course, but I had still to grapple with the car fare problem. I was in a dreadful fix really. For four days I walked every inch of the way, five miles each journey. I used to leave the house at 7 in the morning so as to reach the school promptly at 9.

"Then I found that my French heels were beginning to give out, so I saw my affairs to get a new pair. My transportation would only get me into the city. Suddenly I had an inspiration.

"There were three old maiden sisters who occupied the double room on the second floor. They were without exception the fattest women I ever saw. The most cherubic of the three weighed 300 lb she weighed a pound. They were all saleswomen in one of the big Sixth avenue stores. They used to scrounge down to breakfast in the morning in a duster at the last moment.

"One of them confided to me that they were always late because they delayed them. They almost expired when they were in their attempts to button them. She told me in a tone of the utmost confidence that she could buy their shoes without the death of all three of them. Well, what do you suppose I did? I took the woman aside and I said to her: 'Now look here, I'll make a bargain with you. I want to make a little extra money just now, for I am dreadfully hard up. If you and your two sisters will each pay me twenty cents a week I'll come and button your shoes for you every morning.

"After the mayor's address President Ranney introduced the venerable Dr. N. S. Davis, of Chicago, distinguished medical author and the founder of the American medical association and president of the International Medical Congress.

"Dr. Davis spoke for several minutes in general way, and dwelt upon the advantage of making use of every minute's time during the convention."

"Dr. Davis, of Chicago, read an interesting and instructive paper upon 'The therapeutic inconsistencies in medical practice,' in which he compared the total taboos of stimulants and narcotics in all diseases, claiming that the bad effects of them more than equalled the seeming benefits of their use."

"After the mayor's address President Ranney introduced the venerable Dr. N. S. Davis, of Chicago, distinguished medical author and the founder of the American medical association and president of the International Medical Congress.

"Dr. Davis spoke for several minutes in general way, and dwelt upon the advantage of making use of every minute's time during the convention."

"Dr. Davis, of Chicago, read an interesting and instructive paper upon 'The therapeutic inconsistencies in medical practice,' in which he compared the total taboos of stimulants and narcotics in all diseases, claiming that the bad effects of them more than equalled the seeming benefits of their use."

"Dr. Davis was roundly applauded for his scholarly and pointed way of handling his topic."

"They then adjourned to use stimulants and narcotics before, knowing the injurious effect on their health and life."
