

GUARDED WITH RIFLES

New York Harbor Patrolled By Armed Men.

The Prompt and Thorough Steps Taken to Prevent Contagion.

New York, Sept. 1.—Up to 3 o'clock this afternoon the plague had not reached New York city. It has only been way in the lower bay, near Coney Island Point and Bath Beach, the plague ship swings in the tide, a yellow and black flag fluttering from her peak. Every steamship and tugboat that goes toward the narrows, and not a living soul beyond the health officials is permitted to go aboard or leave her. An armed patrol of customs and health officers prevents any one from approaching nearer than a mile, and Dr. Jenkins gave orders this morning to his deputies to shoot any one who attempted to board the quarantine vessels.

Half a mile from where the ship is anchored in the harbor, the post quarantine. By noon health tugs had transported every passenger and member of the crew from the Moravia to this island, this afternoon the attendants are doing their utmost to stamp out the germs of the dread disease which has already claimed twenty-two victims and made twenty-two other persons deadly sick. The health officers at quarantine say that the Moravia is the worst developed case of the ship's arrival, but he will not deny the probability of a wholesale spread among the four hundred unfortunates who have been isolated from their fellow men. It is not sure but that the plague will break out before this day is done. If he prevents its introduction into New York it will be at the price of constant vigilance.

DOES PROST KILL IT?

Differing Views Regarding the Effect of Cold Upon Cholera.

The approach of winter has led many people to believe that even should the cholera secure a lodgment here its ravages would be of short duration. Authorities, however, differ upon this point.

W. P. Higinis is quoted by a Chicago dispatch as saying:

There is nothing which kills the cholera more effectively than cold. I have spent some years in Shanghai, China, where there is a plague of cholera every year. I have seen the disease in its most deadly form. I have seen the disease in its most deadly form. I have seen the disease in its most deadly form.

On the other hand a London dispatch says:

A large proportion of the people, not only in England, but elsewhere believe that cold weather and frost will check if not eradicate the disease altogether.

RAY WILSON'S BACK

He Arrived Last Night With Sheriff McQueen.

He Admits Assaulting Finegan, But He Was Drunk and is Sorry.

Sheriff McQueen arrived from Council Bluffs last night with Ray Wilson, wanted for deadly assault upon John P. Finegan at Summit's sample room on the night of August 13. Wilson presented a very creditable appearance, being clad in the same suit he wore when he made the murderous assault. A large crowd gathered about the depot to see the man who had been arrested and charged with the assault.

DOING VERY LITTLE

The Work of Cleaning the City Makes No Appreciable Progress.

Cholera is still showing its deadly progress, and a great many are denouncing the means of prevention and cure in case it should reach this city. The prospects are good for a seige of the epidemic, although it may not strike until the middle of the month. It is enough in a mild form, and active steps should be taken to put the streets and alleys in such a condition that they will not help the disease along in its deadly progress.

Heroic Conduct of a Tall, Graceland Girl at the Supreme Test of Love.

Two tall, graceful girls strolled slowly along the beach yesterday morning. They were conspicuous in the throng, and many an admiring glance was cast upon them as they sauntered along.

The girl in the pure white blazer was going most of the talking. "It is all very well," she was saying, "to stand idly by and let the man you love, but the sacrifice is quite another thing."

"You speak," she observed, "like one who had made a sacrifice." "I have the right to speak."

Affecting recollections poured tumultuously from the soul of the girl in the white blazer. Her lips trembled and the amber eyes bent upon the sad face of the girl glistening with the dew of gathering tears.

"I was at Easter, Clara. You remember the dear, bright fellow I was engaged to then. One evening but a week before he was to be married I felt I could not do it."

FREE TO ALL.

A Notable Announcement Made by the Physicians of the Copeland Medical Institute.

Medicines and Treatment Free for Two Weeks to All Who Apply Before September 13—Reasons for Making It.

As was previously stated in this paper, the location of the Copeland Medical Institute and Dr. Copeland and associates, under whose care it is carried on in Grand Rapids, is a permanent one.

When men are brought prominently before the public in the columns of the daily press, a very natural inquiry is prompted as to their record and antecedents. In the case in hand the writer gladly welcomes the opportunity to answer this inquiry.

Dr. W. H. Copeland, though still by no means an old man, has gained for him a reputation in his specialty, the treatment of throat and lung troubles, which has been established by but few physicians to-day.

He is a graduate of the University of Michigan, and has spent several years of his life in the study of medicine, and has been a member of the American Medical Association since its organization.
